

Dinner Table Questions

Some of the most important college and career conversations happen at home. Use these questions at the table, in the car or on a walk to help kick off those conversations.

1 Is there a company or brand you really love? Is there a job there you could see yourself in? How can you research job openings there?

2 Is there a skill you have always wanted to learn? How could you start learning it in the next year?

3 Is there a career you're already thinking about? What would you need to do to enter that field, and is it part of your Career Plan yet?

4 What was your first job, or your first career idea? What did you learn from it? (Adults, this one is for you to answer.)

5 What do you hope comes next after high school? What do we each hope for, and where do those hopes overlap?

6 Which tools do you use to explore careers or connect with professionals? Show us one.

Bonus round: Which careers do you think will matter most 25 years from now? Which might not?
